CONSERVATION STORYTELLER, PHOTOGRAPHER,
WRITER AND HERITAGE ADVOCATE

ABOUT ME

Namulwana Hilda Victoria is a conservation storyteller, conservation photographer, Travel Writer and Cultural Heritage Advocate whose work focus on documenting the relationship between people, culture, heritage and nature. She uses story telling and photography to amplify indigenous knowledge, cultural heritage and community-led conservation and tourism in Uganda.

TRADITIONAL MEDICINE IN TRANSITION

A research project documenting Uganda's indigenous healing knowledge and medicinal plants. It uses community engagement to preserve traditional medicine as both cultural heritage and a living healthcare system.

Women actively participate in community health, some are herbalists, traditional birth attendants, bone setters and spiritualists.

MOSOPISYEK COMMUNITY (MOUNT ELGON, UGANDA)

A community living on the slopes of Mount Elgon with strong cultural ties to land and nature. Their traditions and everyday practices reflect a deep connection between people, culture and conservation.

EUROPEAN UNION AT 50 YEARS IN UGANDA

A long-standing partnership supporting Uganda's development in governance, health, transportation, education, and sustainable growth. The EU has contributed to strengthening institutions and supporting community and development initiatives across the country.
